Abstract of the Disclosure

A device for the treatment of hiccups, and more specifically, to a method and apparatus for the treatment of hiccups involving galvanic stimulation of the Superficial Phrenetic and Vagus nerves using an electric current.

References Cited

U.S. Patent Documents

5861022	Jan., 1999	Hipskind	607/109.

Other References

Lewis, James H., M.D., "Hiccups: Causes and Cures," Journal of Clinical Gastroenterology, vol. 7(6), Dec. 1985, pp. 539-552.
Noble, E. Clark, "Hiccup," The Canadian Medical Association Journal, Jul. 1934, pp.38-41.
Travell, Janet G., M.D., "A Trigger Point for Hiccup," The Journal of the American Osteopathic Association, vol. 77, Dec. 1977, pp. 308-312.
Rousseau, Paul, M.D., "Hiccups," Southern Medical Journal, vol. 88, No. 2, Feb. 1995, pp. 175-181.
Launois, S., et al., "Hiccup in Adults: An Overview," European Respiratory Journal, vol. 6, No. 4, Apr. 1993, pp. 563-575.
Hulbert, N.G., M.D., "Hiccoughing," The Practitioner, vol. 167., Sep. 1951, pp. 286-289.